FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SUNDAY, June 1, 1862. The imports of dry goods were less than an average last week; but those of general merchandise were in excess of the imports of the corresponding weeks of 1861 and 1860. The principal ported were as follows:-

the aggregate amount of cotton and sugar destroyed will not probably prove very large, there will be enough to deter the planters from sending their crops to market until peace and order are thoroughly re-established; and until cotton and other articles of Southern produce do come forward freely there will be no extensive export trade from this section to the South. Several enterprising speculators have sent cargoes South aiready, and, as the embargo on commerce with New Orleans, Beaufort, N. C., and Port Royal, S. C., is and, as the embargo on commerce with New Or-leans, Beaufort, N. C., and Port Royal, S. C., is raised this day, it may be expected that further shipments will be made in the course of the present month. It must, however, be confessed that such shipments are very speculative in their character. They may turn out well, and, in this the profits realized will be very large indeed. But there are many chances that they will turn out badly; that the goods may be seized by army officers, destroyed by mobs, captured by brigands or confiscated by officials on er side; and in this case the loss will be total. We cannot recommend people to ship goods to New Orleans at present. In the course of a few weeks trade will be restored along the Mississippi. It will then be safe to ship goods to any part of the river; and there is not the least doubt but produce enough, in the shape of cotton, sugar, molasses &c., can be obtained to pay for the goods so shipped to the South. Lare will be taken, of course, in giving credit. Mississippi never enjoyed much credit, and will now have less than ever. People who deal with citizens of that State will probably insist on payment in every case on delivery of the goods. In Louisiana there is some feeling of honor, and the established houses will probably make no contracts which they are unable

Since January 1 .... $17,484,817 2,835,247 10,077,150 The bank deposits will probably show an average increase of some three to four millions to-morrow and the specie line an increase of some fifteer hundred thousand dollars. The loans have been diminished by the falling in of mercantile paper which has not been renewed, and increased by purchases of government stocks. It is evident hat our banks, like the Bank of England, are here after going to base their business on the proper security—government stocks. In this country, heretofore, mercantile paper has been the grand basis of banking business, and loans on, or pur. chases of, government securities incidental opera-tions. Henceforth—for some years at all events the bulk of our banking credits will be based on public stocks, and mercantile paper will fall into the second rank. This is as it should be. The best possible mercantile paper rests on a basis of individual security which events may destroy in an hour; whereas, government stocks, as is proved by the crisis through which we have passed, rest upon the indestructible security of our national existence, and all the property possessed by the citizens of the republic. Our banks have learned a sound lesson during the past eighteen months. They will not hereafter be so auxious as they have been heretofore to discount long paper, based upon the credit of merchants in distant States: but they will be more ready than they have ever been to lend money on government stocks, and to foster investments in public securities. Mr. Cisco is now receiving deposits on call after ten daysnotice, for which he is directed to allow 4 per cent per annum interest, and likewise deposits of legal tender currency for conversion into the new five year bonds, known as five-twenties. The recent advance in government securities will doubt. less lead to copious conversions of currency, and will thus supply the government with a large amount of money on very favorable terms. Yes-terday the deposits for conversion fell but little short of $200,000. We look to see the bonds of 1881 selling this summer at 110 a 115, and the 5.20 bonds selling at such a premium as will insure the immediate conversion of all the legal tender currency affoat. Whether Mr. Chase will avail himself of the condition of the money market to reduce the rate of interest on all 5.20 bonds issued after a certain date to five per cent remains to be seen. It is generally supposed that money will not be worth over three per cent per annum this summer, and the security of the United States government will simultaneously be proven to be the best possible in this country. Under these circumstances government ought to be able to obtain all the money it needs at or below five per

The money market was extremely easy all last week. None of the leading houses are willing to give over 3 per cent for money, and the opinion is confidently expressed that its value will fall still lower. There is very little mercantile paper making: good names pass readily at 4 a 5 per cent. Certificates of public indebtedness are worth 100% a 2. Capitalists are sorely puzzled to know what to do with their means. It is pretty evident that, however the warmay terminate, many months must elapse before trade revives to such an extent as to affect of employment to the capital which is accumulating here. In the meantime how to make this money yield income is an embarrassing problem. Most of the first class bonds, on which interest is regularly paid, are already above par, and there is quite a lively competition for bonds of the lower class, which are in progress of recovery from depression. The Sub-Treasure offers 4 per cent for all deposition on all after ten days; but this rate is so much below the average value of money in this city that capitalists are not hastening to avail themselves of the offer, and are using their money temporarily on the Stock Exchange.

Bankers' bills on London closed yesterday at 114% a %, having declined about ½ per cent during the week. Prance were quoted 4.95% a 4.92%, having fallen about ½ per cent Gold, after having touched 104, closed at about 103%. There are few bills in market; but the demand is very slack. Leading importers, and importers on speculation, paid for their goods in advance. A few houses are letting importers, and importers on speculation, paid for their goods in advance. A few houses are letting importers, and importers on speculation, paid for their goods in advance. A few houses are letting importers, and importers on speculation, paid for their goods in advance. freely under the United States flag in the course of the summer. How long a period it may take to satisfy the rebels of the utter fallacy of attempting to resist the government is the problem in the case. We hear of few sales of exchange for future delivery. Bankers are unwilling to sell, or importers to buy, on the terms which were popular a week ago. In the event of cotton coming forward in August and September, bankers will make money by the contracts they have made. If the rebels control the planting interest, and keep cotton back, the merchants who bought, for delivery in the later months of the summer and autumn, at 113, will make money by the operation. The following table shows the course of the stock market for the past week and month:-

The stock market varied but little last week Vigorous efforts were made by the bears to depress prices, which were but feebly resisted by the bulls-The Indiana State imbroglio has been used with skill and effect to shake public confidence. Early last week quite a number of stocks came on the market in consequence of the affair, and prices. especially of Pacific Mail, Erie, Toledo, &c., declined heavily in consequence. Yesterday and day before, however, a fresh demand sprang up, and the decline was speedily recovered. There are so many people who are in search of temporary and permanent investments for their means that no decline on the Stock Exchange can be permanent. In the opinion of the oldest members of the Stock Exchange the course of the market must be upward. as a general rule, so long as the money market remains in its present condition and no new avenues are opened for the employment of capital. Stocks which yield a regular revenue of 6 a 8 per cent per annum will naturally be bought by parties who have money to dispose of, and who cannot make it earn 5 per cent by lending it on call, or by buying commercial paper. Stocks which yield a larger income will be still more actively sought after. Pacific Mail, for instance, which has paid twenty per cent per annum for several years, and is carning at present about thirty per cent on its capital, with no present prospect of a decline in its business, is quite naturally more generally wanted by investors at 115 a 116, than it was in other seasons at 80 a 90. We hear that the principal stockholders in the company object to the accumulation of further surplus, and demand that the amount of money due from governmentome $220,000—which will be paid in a day or two, be divided this month. The Western and New York shares vary but little. There is a steady speculative inquiry for the Erie stocks, Toledo, Galena and Rock Island. Some of the speculators in the street had a notion that these stocks would be slaughtered, in consequence of large amounts of them being held by parties who held Indiana State bonds. Some stocks have undoubtedly been sold on this account; but, so far as we can learn, there is no prospect of further sales. Instead of the bull failures which were talked of, we have heard of no defaults on that side, however it may have fared with their opponents. In State stocks there has been but little change during the past week. Northern State stocks are wanted at full prices, with the exception of the stocks of Indiana, which are under a temporary cloud. It is claimed by the State agents of Indiana that the State cannot in any event be made liable for any debts incurred by its properly accredited agents without legislative aurity. We infer that the State of Indiana is not likely to borrow any more money. The past financial history of that State should warn her officials against the danger and the cost of too sharp prac-
